ORGANIC CONTENT PROGRAM

Your 30-Day Post Plan

YOUR NEXT 30 DAYS ARE PLANNED FOR YOU. YOU JUST NEED TO TAKE ACTION.

How This Works

1

BEFORE DAY 1

Shoot day

Film the 23 talking-head posts in one half-day (Module 5). The other 7 you film as they happen: your day, the team, a client.

2

EVERY MONDAY

Review + schedule

Claude reviews last week's numbers, then you schedule the week's 7 posts (Modules 6 and 7). Thirty minutes.

3

EVERY DAY

One post, 7:30am

One post goes out every morning. Reply to comments for 15 minutes after it goes live. Tick it off.

4

EVERY SUNDAY

Improve one thing

Look back at the week, be honest, and improve one thing. On day 30, score every post and book next month's shoot.

Client stories: remove names and anything identifying, get the client's OK, and check your local conduct and advertising rules before posting results.

BARE MINIMUM:
ONCE A WEEK.

MAX PLAY:
ONCE A DAY.

Start Where You Are

1 a week

BARE MINIMUM

Post the Monday post every week. Never go below this.

Days 1, 8, 15, 22, 29

5 posts this month

3 a week

BUILDING

Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Move up when once a week feels easy.

Days 1, 3, 5, 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 24, 26, 29

13 posts this month

1 a day

MAX PLAY

Every post in this plan. This is where it compounds.

Days 1 to 30

30 posts this month

The guiding principle: start with the bare minimum, once a week, then build to once a day. A good post this week beats a perfect post next month.

Guiding Principles

LIMITING BELIEF

"I don't like how I look on camera."

You won't love it at the start. Nobody does, and that's fine. It gets easier with every video.

LIMITING BELIEF

"It needs one more edit."

You'll want to tweak it forever. Post it anyway, then get feedback and make the next one better.

GUIDING PRINCIPLE

Don't let analysis paralysis stop you.

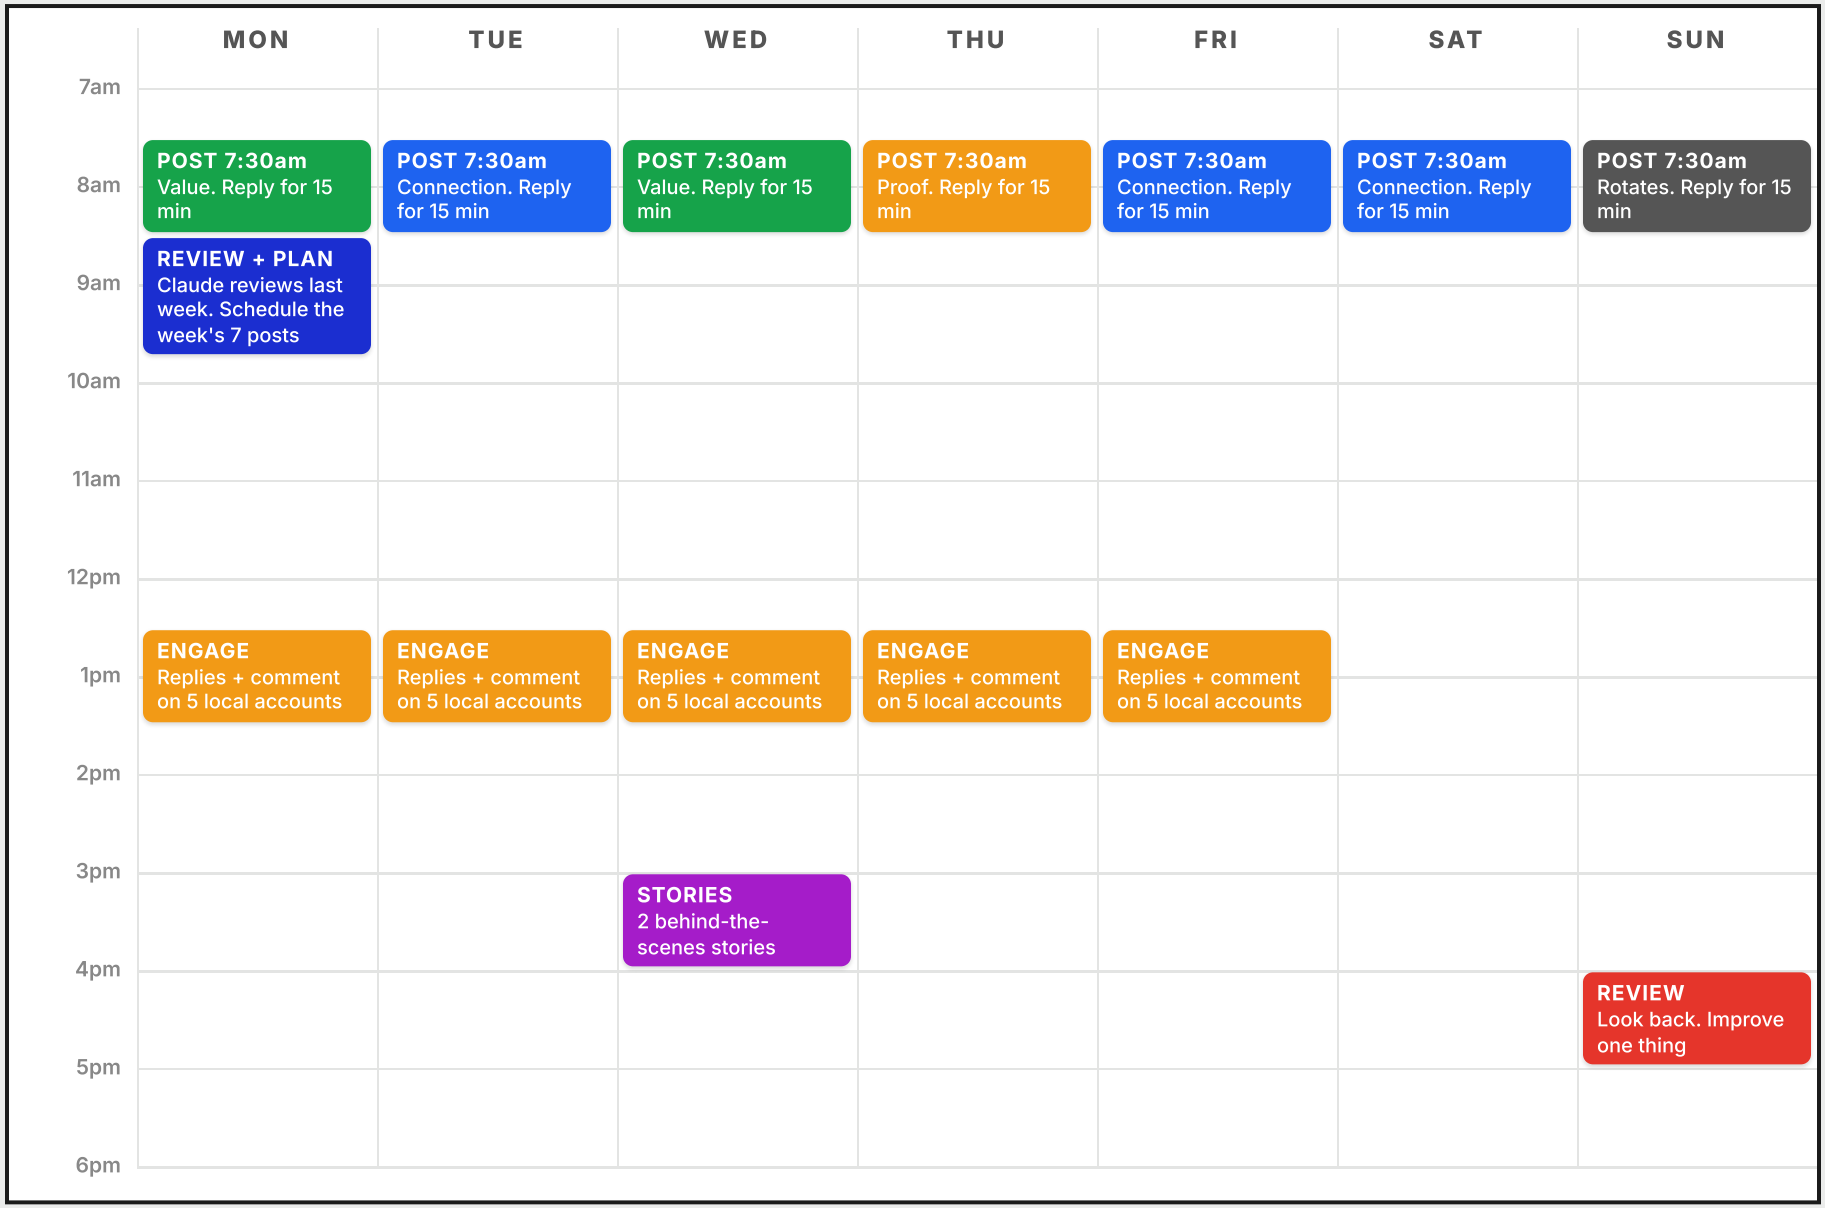

Bare minimum once a week, max play once a day. A good post this week beats a perfect post next month.

GUIDING PRINCIPLE

Review once a week.

Every Sunday, look back and improve one thing. Then bring it up with us on our weekly call.

Your Weekly Content Schedule

About 4 hours a week. Put these blocks in your calendar as recurring events now, the same way you'd block a client meeting. Once a month, add a half-day shoot.

Day 1 · Monday, 7:30am · Value, pain points

The costliest mistake

“The most expensive mistake I see in family law? Signing before getting advice.”

Your ex hands you a document. It looks fair. It says something like "we each keep what's in our own name". You just want it over, so you sign.

Six months later you find out the super was never counted, or the business was worth three times what you thought. Once it's signed and filed, undoing it is slow and expensive.

An hour with a lawyer before you sign costs a fraction of that. Even if all we do is read it and tell you it's fine.

Follow for more straight answers about family law.

Law in 30 Seconds #1

“Law in 30 Seconds: what a binding financial agreement actually is.”

A binding financial agreement is a written agreement about how you'd split your property, and sometimes your super, if you separate.

You can make one before you move in together, during the relationship, or after you split. For it to hold up, you each need your own lawyer, and each lawyer signs a certificate saying they advised you. Skip that and it can be thrown out.

It's private, it's usually far cheaper than court, and it gives you certainty.

Follow for the next Law in 30 Seconds.

Just separated? Do this

“If you've just separated and don't know what to do first, watch this.”

First: write down everything you own and owe, and where the paperwork is. Bank accounts, super, the mortgage, cars, any business. No values yet, just the list.

Second: write down how the kids are being looked after right now, day by day, and keep it going.

And one thing not to do yet: don't move money or sign anything until you've had advice.

Day 8 · Monday, 7:30am · Value, pain points

"Will I lose the house?"

“'Will I lose the house?' Here's the honest answer.”

It's the question I hear most. And no, not automatically.

The court looks at what each of you put in, money and otherwise, like raising the kids. Then it looks at what you'll each need from here: who has the kids, your health, what you can earn.

Sometimes one of you keeps the house and the other gets more super or cash. Sometimes it's sold. It comes down to your numbers, which is why early advice matters.

Law in 30 Seconds #2

“Law in 30 Seconds: what "just and equitable" really means.”

"Just and equitable" is the test every property settlement has to pass. It sounds vague because it is.

It means the court won't just add up who earned what. It asks: given everything you both contributed, and what you'll each need after this, is the split fair?

That's why two couples with exactly the same assets can end up with different splits.

Come with me to court

“Come with me to court today (no client details, promise).”

Court days start early. [Walking in.] This is the part nobody sees: the waiting.

Unpopular opinion

“Unpopular opinion: most separations should never go near a courtroom.”

Court is slow, it's expensive, and a stranger ends up making decisions about your life.

Law in 30 Seconds #3

“Law in 30 Seconds: what actually happens at mediation.”

Most people picture mediation as two people yelling in a room. It usually isn't.

Often you're in separate rooms and the mediator goes back and forth. You can have your lawyer with you, and nobody can make you agree to anything.

It's cheaper than court, it's private, and for parenting matters you usually have to try it first anyway.

The 50/50 myth

“Everyone thinks a property split is automatically 50/50. It's not.”

There's no starting point of half each.

The court looks at what each of you contributed, money and otherwise, and what you'll each need from here.

That's why 60/40 and 70/30 splits happen all the time.

More enquiries ↑

Better hook

Few views, but enquiries came in. Great topic. Re-film it with a stronger first line.

Double down

Views and enquiries. Film 3 more like it next month.

Kill it

Few views, no enquiries. Drop the topic and move on.

Stronger CTA

Lots of views, no enquiries. People watch but don't act. Make the ask clearer.
